THE HAGUE
BY ABDULLA RASHEED
Abu Dhabi Editor

The top United Nations court yesterday threw out Sudan's case against the UAE due to lack of jurisdiction. The UAE welcomed the decision by the International Court of Justice (ICJ) in The Hague to reject the lawsuit filed by the Sudanese Armed Forces (SAF). The ruling reflected ICJ's adherence to international legal standards and reaffirmed the UAE's consistent position in upholding justice and the rule of law while rejecting unfounded allegations intended to damage its international standing. The ICJ's decision to dismiss the case underscored the baseless nature of the accusations against the UAE and highlighted attempts to divert attention from grave humanitarian violations taking place in Sudan. The ruling reinforced the urgent need to address the real causes of the crisis and to hold accountable those responsible for the ongoing atrocities against the Sudanese people. This outcome reaffirms what has long been clear: The SAF's case is unfounded and lacks any basis. The UAE has consistently rejected SAF's fabrications, which serve as a transparent attempt to divert attention from their own actions and the ongoing atrocities in Sudan. In a statement, Reem Ketait, Deputy Assistant Minister of Foreign Affairs for Political Affairs and the UAE's Representative before the court, said: "The decision is a clear and decisive affirmation of the fact that this case was utterly baseless. Quite simply, today's decision represents a resounding rejection of SAF's attempt to instrumentalise the Court for its campaign of misinformation and to distract from its own responsibility."

Civilian-led process

"As Sudan's devastating civil war enters its third year, the UAE calls on the SAF and RSF [Rapid Support Forces] to end the war without preconditions, commit to negotiations, and allow unhindered humanitarian access. The international community must act decisively to help facilitate a civilian-led political process, independent from military control, and hold perpetrators of atrocities accountable."

"We will continue to work with regional and international partners to advance collective action to build a peaceful and prosperous future for the Sudanese people," Ketait added.

The UAE urged the United Nations Security Council and the wider international community not to be distracted by peripheral matters, but instead to concentrate on the dire humanitarian crisis in Sudan. It called for a united response against the obstruction of humanitarian assistance and for ensuring its unhindered delivery to affected populations.

Skype rings for the last time after two decades

DUBAI
BY ZAINAB HUSAIN
Features Writer

After more than two decades of connecting families, friends and colleagues across the globe, Skype officially shut down yesterday. The closure, first announced in February 2025, marks the end of an era for the pioneering internet calling and messaging service, which Microsoft acquired nearly 14 years ago. Launched in 2003, Skype quickly became a household name, revolutionising online communication. At its peak in the mid-2010s, it boasted over 300 million monthly active users. However, the rise of newer platforms such as Zoom and Microsoft Teams gradually pushed Skype out of the spotlight. Skype also faced stiff competition from apps such as WhatsApp, Telegram, Snapchat and WeChat.

UAE hiring grows at fastest pace in 11 months

Jobseekers will be hoping for hiring trends to continue after weak spell

DUBAI
BY MANOJ NAIR
Business Editor

UAE businesses went back into a hiring spree in April, with job gains recording its 'sharpest' increase in 11 months, according to the latest Standard & Poor's Global PMI data. This will come as a major shot of confidence for jobseekers because April's hiring represents a reversal from a 'relatively subdued period of job creation'. And more so, since the final quarter of last year. Businesses were hiring because they needed to clear higher workloads, which has been going up since early 2024. "The latest figures showed the rate of backlog accumulation easing to a six-month low, albeit remaining steep overall," the S&P report notes, adding that transaction delays were hampering work. According to industry sources, the industrial and light industrial sectors were in fairly active hiring mode. The same trends are seen in the construction sector too. It remains to be seen whether the increased pace of hiring will extend to the coming months before the typical slowness during peak summer. "The April PMI results signalled a notable uptick in hiring activity across the non-oil private sector," said David Owen, Senior Analyst at S&P Global Market. What will most please UAE businesses is the rise in new orders, even with the perpetual noise around US tariffs and worries about a global recession playing in the background. The April PMI (Purchasing Managers Index) score remained at 54, signalling the upbeat growth conditions in the market. (The PMI reading is based on dynamics such as new business orders, hiring trends, cost of operations, etc.. Any reading above 50 is a sign of an economy in health.)
