

Hour by hour, what Christmas drinking does to your body – and how to reduce your hangover

SEE PAGES 28-29

SYRIA CHAOS IS A 'CHRONIC THREAT TO OUR SECURITY'

Warning from ex-MI6 boss over ISIS prisoners who could flee

By Sam Greenhill
Chief Reporter

THOUSANDS of jihadis being held in Syria pose a 'chronic' threat to the West's security if they are released, the former chief of MI6 has warned.

Sir Alex Younger said yesterday the toppling of the Assad regime risked a 'serious spike' in the threat of 'a very large number' of Islamic State (IS) detainees becoming free.

There are fears a flood of extremists could head to Europe if security around their detention camps is relaxed.

It comes as Foreign Secretary David Lammy cautioned a Syrian civil war could trigger a new migration crisis for the UK and Europe.

He suggested the flow of joyful Syrian refugees returning home 'could quickly become a flow back out' if the revolution backfired.

Mr Lammy branded deposed tyrant Bashar al-Assad 'the rat of Damascus, fleeing to Moscow with his tail between his legs' as the Kremlin confirmed Vladimir Putin had personally granted him asylum on 'humanitarian grounds'.

After his bloodthirsty 24-year rule, Assad escaped by private jet with his British-born wife Asma and their children as the rebels closed in on Damascus at the weekend. With an

Turn to Page 2

'HOT ASSASSIN' SENSATION

Manhattan shooting suspect arrested in McDonald's

Detained: Luigi Mangione, 26, was held after a US healthcare boss was shot in the back

SEE PAGE 5