

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVII NO. 134

WSJ.com

★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 50872.11 ▲ 86.10 0.17%

NASDAQ 25678.82 ▼ 1.0%

STOXX 600 618.64 ▼ 0.5%

10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 6/32, yield 4.527%

OIL $88.20 ▼ $3.10

GOLD $4,260.00 ▼ $75.90

EURO $1.1543

YEN 160.37

What's News

Business & Finance

◆ Kalshi plan to require that participants in some prediction markets disclose the identity of their employers after an advisory committee recommended tighter security measures to deter potential insider trading and market manipulation. A1

◆ Anthropic released a next-generation “Mythos-class” model to the general public with guardrails that remove dangerous capabilities related to areas such as cybersecurity and biological research. B1

◆ The nascent tech-stock rebound ended in a lurch, with the Nasdaq falling 1% in its largest blown gain since January and the S&P 500 shedding 0.3%. The Dow rose 0.2%. B1

◆ Home sales in May posted the biggest rise this year, a sign that the housing market’s spring selling season may be showing signs of life after a sluggish start. A2

◆ Broadcom will work with Apollo and Blackstone’s credit and insurance business to launch a platform backed by an initial $35 billion to finance artificial-intelligence infrastructure. B4

◆ GSK agreed to buy U.S. cancer-drug developer Nuvent for $10.6 billion, boosting the British pharmaceutical company’s renewed activity in oncology. B3

◆ J.M. Smucker said it expects sales to decline in the coming year as it leans away from price increases and looks instead to drive growth in volume. B3

Worldwide

◆ The U.S. launched strikes on Iran in retaliation for the downing of a U.S. Apache helicopter near the Strait of Hormuz. Centcom called it “a proportional response.” A1

◆ The House passed a Republican-led $70 billion immigration-enforcement bill, ending a monthslong stalemate and funding the contentious operations through the rest of Trump’s second term. A3

◆ Democrats in Maine set aside the controversies surrounding Graham Platner and selected him to challenge GOP Sen. Susan Collins. A4

◆ Republican Steve Hilton advanced to the general election for California governor and will face off against Democrat Xavier Becerra. A4

◆ Rep. Nancy Mace was knocked out of the race for South Carolina governor. A4

◆ Trump administration officials asked a government AI-testing unit to stop issuing public reports as the White House tightens control over AI models. A3

◆ NASA chose a new slate of astronauts for its next Artemis mission, which aims to test the craft that will eventually return the U.S. to the lunar surface. A3

◆ A Texas teen who fatally stabbed a track athlete from a rival team was convicted of murder and sentenced to 35 years in prison. A4

◆ Medical societies published the first guidelines to help clinicians prevent and manage a cluster of disorders known as CKM. A6

JOURNAL REPORT

Investing Monthly: How to invest in crypto without owning it directly. B5-6

CONTENTS	Opinion..... A15-17
Arts in Review..... A13	Personal Journal A11-12
Business & Finance B2-10	Property Report..... B7
Business News..... B3	Sports..... A14
Crossword..... A12	Technology..... B4
Heard on Street..... B16	U.S. News..... A2-4,6
Markets..... B15	World News..... A7-9

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

From France, an Early Happy Birthday, U.S.A.

SMOKING: Planes of the Patrouille de France, the country’s aerobatics demonstration unit, perform a patriotic flyover of New York’s Hudson River and the Statue of Liberty on Tuesday to celebrate the 250th anniversary of U.S. independence.

Kalshi, to Combat Inside Betting, Plans Workplace Disclosure Rule

Prediction market plans guardrails on some trades to curb suspicious activity

Kalshi is planning to require that participants in some prediction markets disclose the identity of their employers, after an advisory committee recommended tighter security measures to combat potential insider trading and market manipulation.

Users seeking to make bets in some markets linked to material nonpublic information will be required to submit an online form disclosing where they work, Kalshi said. The changes are set to be rolled out in the coming weeks.

Sensitive betting markets related to issues such as company performance and national security, including the war in Iran, are expected to require employment disclosure, according to a Kalshi official.

In most cases, Kalshi won’t verify the employment information provided by users unless the company learns of suspicious activity, a Kalshi spokeswoman said.

Once suspicious activity is

By Brian Schwartz,
Krystal Hur and Katherine Long

flagged, the company will launch an investigation and seek proof of employment.

The increasing popularity of prediction markets such as Kalshi and Polymarket has compounded pressure on them to address suspicious activity, with lawmakers, regulators and prosecutors raising concerns about insider trading.

The changes being put in place by Kalshi come in response to a report from an audit committee, which recommended Kalshi collect employment information from users, according to a summary of the panel’s findings.

Under Kalshi’s current data collection system, “identifying potential insider relationships typically required manual review using publicly available information after trading activity had already occurred,” the report says. Collecting employment information could improve “market surveillance analysis, early-stage investigative review, and deterrence.”

Please turn to page A2

U.S. Hits Iran Sites Following Downing Of Copter

Tehran officials deny targeting the aircraft after water rescue of two crew members

The U.S. launched strikes on Iran on Tuesday in retaliation for the downing of a U.S. Apache helicopter near the Strait of Hormuz, U.S. Central Command said.

By Shelby Holliday,
Jared Malsin,
Alexander Ward
and Lara Seligman

The strikes, which the military said were carried out in self-defense, were directed by President Trump. “The mission is a proportional response to unjustified Iranian aggression,” Centcom said in a statement at about 9 p.m. Eastern time announcing the end of the operation.

The U.S. launched three waves of attacks, all targeting Iranian air defenses and radars near the Strait of Hormuz, according to a senior U.S. official.

In response, Iran’s Revolutionary Guard Corps launched a drone attack on the U.S. Fifth Fleet in Bahrain, which warned its citizens on social media to “head to the nearest safe place.” Kuwait’s army said on social media that it was intercepting incoming fire.

Trump hadn’t been convinced of the need to retaliate against Iran earlier in the day, U.S. officials said. In a phone call Tuesday morning with The Wall Street Journal, he played

Please turn to page A10

◆ Heard on the Street: Oil stockpiling to hit prices... B16

Lebanon Is Teetering On Abyss of a New Civil War

A ceasefire agreement with Israel requiring the government to dismantle Hezbollah reignites sectarian tensions

By OMAR ABDEL-BAQUI AND WAELE TALEB

BEIRUT—The government of Lebanon is barely able to manage the basic requirements of statehood. It can provide electricity for only a few hours a day, and people avoid its flattened currency in favor of dollars. Its military is only the second-most-powerful force in the country after Hezbollah—or the third counting Israel, which has been expanding its monthslong occupation. But it is now being pressed by the U.S.,

Israel and many of its own people toward a confrontation with Hezbollah that risks tilting the country into a new civil war.

The growing pressure comes via a new and already-strained ceasefire deal to end the war with Israel that has rocked Lebanon since early March, when Hezbollah sided with Iran and began firing rockets across the border. The agreement requires the Lebanese state to take back control of its territory a little at a time as it disarms and dis-

Please turn to page A10

A Dog Walker and a Dentist Battle Over Who Owns the Beach

Neighborly feud landed two men in court, highlighting murky state of shore law

By MARIAH TIMMS

A recent trial in Shorewood, Wis., had all the trappings of a minor legal dispute. A disgruntled neighbor. A defendant representing himself who called his own father as a character witness. A $313 fine.

But if academic and devoted dog walker Paul Florsheim gets his way, the case will go all the way up to the Wisconsin Supreme Court and reshape the contours of shoreline access to one of the Great Lakes.

It started when Florsheim started walking his two dogs past the Lake Michigan property of dentist Daniel Domagala, known locally for the time he spends in a Tiki-style boat house and deck that doubles as a surveillance post.

From there, Domagala monitors traffic and sets off alarms to scare walkers, swimmers and kayakers away.

Florsheim repeatedly ignored signs outside the dentist’s house that said “PRIVATE PROPERTY BEYOND THIS SIGN” and “ONLY WATER ACCESS BEYOND THIS POINT.” Domagala kept calling the cops, and the village eventually issued a trespassing citation.

Rather than pay the fine and walk away, Florsheim dug in.

At stake is what right people in Wisconsin have to take a shoreline stroll. State law is clear that people can wade, swim or boat in state-protected waters, but things get murkier out of the water. Florsheim, who was ticketed for

Please turn to page A12

Crime scene

INSIDE

PERSONAL JOURNAL
Siri gets a facelift and a brain transplant—but the real key is its familiarity. A11

U.S. NEWS
Home sales in May notched their biggest increase since December. A2

Data Centers Meet ‘Man Camp’ Backlash In Pastoral Wyoming

By JOE BARRETT

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Twenty years ago, Stan and Tammy Higgins moved into a home just outside this Old West railroad town on 3 acres of wind-swept shortgrass prairie. From their back window, they saw grazing cattle, roaming antelope and coyotes on the prowl.

That pastoral scene is gone: Heavy trucks, earth movers and hundreds of construction workers have run nearly round-the-clock for about two years building a Meta Platforms data center. To the east, Microsoft recently announced plans to triple the acreage of its already sizable data complex. To the south, work is just getting started on Project Jade, which could one day be among the biggest data centers in the U.S.

Now comes the “man camp.” In the U.S.’s least populous state, companies must import armies of workers—and find somewhere to put them. So local officials are weighing a developer’s pitch to erect a “temporary workforce housing complex” for as many as 5,600 laborers and tradespeople. The complex would be larger than 84 of Wyoming’s incorporated cities and towns, according to state data.

Iron Guard Housing, the project developer, touts “pristine, conveniently located, and comfortable man camp housing.” It is “a lifestyle experience,” said owner Chad Ross: high security, linen and dining service, a gym and pickleball courts. Workers live in relative comfort, with a shower, a TV, a bed and “a recliner to kick his or her feet up and relax.” Employers keep turnover down.

This new small worker

Please turn to page A6