

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp

WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVIII NO. 18

WSJ.com

★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 52224.64 ▲ 385.38 0.74% NASDAQ 25837.21 ▲ 1.3% STOXX 600 643.19 ▲ 0.6% 10-YR. TREAS. ▼ 7/32, yield 4.628% OIL $84.91 ▲ $1.68 GOLD $4,071.10 ▲ $60.80 EURO $1.1398 YEN 163.18

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ OpenAI said two AI systems it was testing broke out of their test environment, hacked their way onto the internet and broke into another company. B1
- ◆ OpenAI named David Vélez, founder and global chief executive of Nubank, a Latin American digital-services firm, and Robin Vince, the chief executive of Bank of New York Mellon, as directors. B4
- ◆ Major U.S. stock indexes rallied, with the S&P 500, Nasdaq and Dow rising 0.9%, 1.3% and 0.7%, respectively. B11
- ◆ Novo Nordisk escalated the weight-loss competition, suing Eli Lilly for allegedly using deceptive advertising. B1
- ◆ Novartis returned to sales growth in the second quarter as revenue from key drugs helped to offset patent expirations. B2
- ◆ Disney agreed to serve Kraft Heinz products at its North American properties and will permit the food company to use Disney characters on some goods in stores. B1
- ◆ Fenway Sports Group, the owner of the Boston Red Sox, is in talks to sell a minority stake in Britain's Liverpool Football Club. B3
- ◆ Northrop Grumman raised its guidance on the back of steady global demand fueled by military spending. B3
- ◆ Utz Brands agreed to be taken private by German salty-snacks-maker Inter-snack Group at an enterprise value of about $2.9 billion. B3
- ◆ Hasbro raised its full-year outlook after swinging to a profit and logging higher revenue for the second quarter. B3

Worldwide

- ◆ With its deadly attacks on an air base in Jordan, Iran proved that it retains a significant missile-and-drone arsenal that still threatens U.S. forces and Washington's regional allies, despite Trump's claim to have destroyed Tehran's military. A1
- ◆ Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth estimated the latest cost of the Iran war at $37.5 billion, some $9 billion higher than earlier figures provided by the Pentagon. A3
- ◆ An American manufacturer will for the first time begin producing drone boats designed and battle-tested by Ukraine as the Pentagon seeks to expand its arsenal of autonomous weapons. A3
- ◆ Trump is preparing to reshape the legal justification for his tariff regime this week and push negotiations with North American trading partners into high gear. A1
- ◆ The Trump administration plans to accelerate its overhaul of federal research by supporting more individual scientists and the use of AI rather than universities. A2
- ◆ Top utilities and data-center developers joined Trump's ratepayer-protection pledge, committing to pay more for electricity for data centers. A2
- ◆ Mayor Zohran Mamdani said New York City doesn't have the authority to arrest Benjamin Netanyahu, but he urged the federal government to carry out the International Criminal Court's warrant for the Israeli leader. A3
- ◆ New Jersey removed thousands of non-U.S. citizens from its voter rolls, blaming a software error for the registration of the individuals. A4

CONTENTS		Opinion.....	A13-15
Arts in Review....	A12	Personal Journal A10-11
Business & Finance...	B2	Property Report....	B6
Business News.....	B3,5	Sports.....	A16
Crossword.....	A11	Technology.....	B4
Heard on Street....	B12	U.S. News.....	A2-5
Markets.....	B11	World News.....	A6,8

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Bowing to Protests, Zelensky Ousts Army Chief

SINET JACQUELINE FOR WSJ

PEOPLE POWER: President Volodymyr Zelensky dismissed Gen. Oleksandr Syrskiy on Tuesday as head of Ukraine's armed forces. Protesters have thronged Kyiv in the wake of Zelensky's removal of Mikhailo Fedorov, the tech-savvy defense minister who criticized Syrskiy for being too slow to adapt his methods to avoid bloody battles against a more powerful foe. A6

Tehran's Missile Barrage Shows U.S. Hasn't Erased Lethal Threat

Iran flaunts deadly ability, despite Trump claiming its military was totally destroyed

With deadly attacks on an air base in Jordan, Iran has proven it retains a significant missile-and-drone arsenal that still threatens U.S. forces and its regional allies, despite President Trump's claim to have "totally destroyed" Iran's military. The strike on Muwaffaq Salti Air Base on Friday that killed three U.S. servicemembers was likely carried out by Tehran's most effective missiles, including the Kheibar Shekan midrange system, military analysts said. That missile system and others were housed in vast underground facilities that the U.S. and Israel spent weeks pounding in March and April. Since then, Iran has dug out the openings and resumed firing from some of the bases, some analysts said. That underscored the continuing challenge the U.S. is facing: More than a week after resuming airstrikes against

By David S. Cloud in Washington, D.C., and Anat Peled and Milán Czerny in Tel Aviv

Iran, it has been unable to quell Tehran's ability to strike back. U.S. forces struck military targets in Iran Tuesday night, marking the 11th consecutive night of attacks, U.S. Central Command said. The Pentagon confirmed a third soldier was killed in the Jordan attack. Sgt. Angel Rampersad, 28, of Ozone Park, N.Y., was listed as missing before.

Iran's attack was its fourth in five days on U.S. troops in Jordan, an indication that Tehran hasn't exhausted its missile stocks and might have become better at evading U.S. air-defense systems, some analysts said. For Iran, the goal is to raise the cost to the U.S. of prolong-

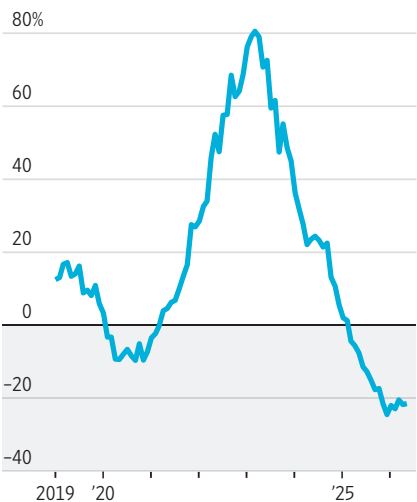

Please turn to page A8

- ◆ Disruptions on Red and Black Seas threaten oil... A8
- ◆ Israel heeds U.S. call to skip war's latest phase... A8
- ◆ Heard on the Street: Gold remains a hedge..... B12

AI Hikes Building Costs

The spending binge for AI data centers is helping to mask some of the weakness in traditional categories of commercial and industrial construction. Spending on new factories, warehouses and other non-AI industrial sites has been held back by rising costs. A2

Construction spending on manufacturing buildings, change from a year earlier*

*Seasonally adjusted annual rate
Source: Commerce Dept.

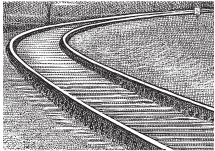

A Locomotive Named Big Boy Is Making Grown Men Cry

World's largest operating steam locomotive is on its first coast-to-coast tour

By ESTHER FUNG

ALTOONA, Pa.—This summer's tear-jerker isn't a rom-com. It's Big Boy 4014. The 1.2-million-pound locomotive, built in 1941 to haul heavy freight across the Wasatch Mountains between Utah and Wyoming, is traveling east of the Mississippi on its first coast-to-coast tour. At every stop, grown men are welling up, said Ed Dickens, Union Pacific's chief locomotive engineer for Big Boy. Gordon Tobias teared up each of the four times he went to see Big Boy 4014 in action in Pennsylvania—twice at Valley Forge and twice at Conshohocken. "I never saw myself as a rail fan," said Tobias, a 64-year-old semi-retiree from Wayne, Pa. But after his first sighting, he was hooked. "Nothing beats feeling the ground vibrate, seeing the charting of the wheels and hearing the whistle," he said. "It's such a sensory experience." Trainspotters have been studying Big Boy 4014's schedule and traveling long distances to catch sight of the iron giant. In June, thousands came to Tunkhannock Viaduct in Pennsylvania to see it traverse the concrete arch bridge. Groups chatted under the hot sun, until the distant sound of a whistle caused a hush to spread. "I was choked up," said Matthew Di Gioia, 25, who works as an Amtrak signalman. "It looked like my model Please turn to page A11

Way-railroad

How London's Planning Rules Keep Housing Unaffordable

Home construction is nearing a standstill, thanks to regulation, increased building costs and politics; 'It's strangling the city'

By NATASHA DANGOOR

LONDON—Shoreditch Works is the kind of real-estate project big cities say they need: It aims to revitalize a rundown block in east London, delivering about 80 new homes, retail space for several thousand workers, a green tech incubator and new pedestrian lanes and public space. Developers have spent four years trying to convince authorities to approve their plan, submitting more than 9,000 pages in documentation. Local planning officers denied the bid earlier this year, saying it lacked detail. The U.K. capital is at a crisis point. Home construction is nearing a standstill, thanks to a toxic mix of Byzantine regulations, increased building costs, high interest rates and politics. London has an official annual target of 88,000 new homes. It broke ground on just 4,170 housing units in 2024-25, according to data from the Centre for Policy Studies, a center-right think tank. During that period, Please turn to page A9

INSIDE

FRANK FRANKLIN/UP

SPORTS

Two late goals, one red card, and the last villain of this World Cup. A16

PROPERTY REPORT Beachfront estates are selling at a discount in Malibu's sluggish post-fire recovery. B6

When Buying a House 'Sight Unseen' Comes With 3 Dead Bodies

By KATE KING

BURLINGTON, Conn.—Edward Marchion took a chance when he bought a four-bedroom house in this affluent suburb without stepping inside. When he entered for the first time, he could hardly believe what he found: three dead bodies. Connecticut State Police described the bodies found at the foreclosed home as "skeletal remains" and identified one of them as the previous co-owner, Sally Anne Cash, who would be 54 years old today. Another body belonged to her son, Brian Cash, who would have turned 23 this month. The third body is undergoing DNA testing to determine its identity, according to the Connecticut Office of the Chief Medical Examiner. Sally Anne Cash purchased the house in 2019 with her husband. Marchion won the house in June at a "sight unseen" foreclosure auction, meaning bidders weren't able to tour inside beforehand. Marchion's winning bid was $525,000, seemingly a bargain for a property valued at $650,000 in one of the country's hottest housing markets. "I don't know if I'd want the house after that," said Michael NeJaime, who lives about half a mile away. The lawyer appointed by the court to oversee the foreclosure auction, Christopher Thogmartin, said he assumed most bidders planned to flip the home for resale. Marchion declined to comment. It is still not clear when or how the house's former owner and her son died, but police said they believe the deaths were an isolated incident. The mystery is an extreme example of what home buyers Please turn to page A4