UAE hosts Round 2 of talks to end Ukraine war

ABU DHABI

The second round of tri-lateral talks between Russia, Ukraine, and the United States began yesterday in Abu Dhabi, as part of ongoing diplomatic efforts to advance the political process toward resolving the crisis.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA) underlined that the UAE's hosting of the second round underscores its strong and balanced relations with all three parties, as well as the international community's confidence in the UAE's role in facilitating dialogue and fostering a conducive environment for constructive talks led by US President Donald Trump.

The Ministry underscored that the launch of the second round reflects the parties' continued commitment to the diplomatic process and expressed hope that it will build on the outcomes of the first round and contribute to advancing mutual understanding.

Delegations from Moscow and Kyiv were joined in the UAE by US officials, Rustem Umerov, Ukraine's National Security and Defence Council chief, who was present at the meeting, said on social media.

The American team was due to include special envoy Steve Witkoff and Trump's son-in-law, Jared Kushner, who also attended last month's meeting, according to the White House.

Kuwait PM warns of global instability amid Iran talks

AHMAD ABDULLAH CALLS FOR RESTRAINT AS IRAN TALKS MOVE TO OMAN

DUBAI

Global stability depends on restraint, continuity and effective control, Kuwait's prime minister said in Dubai, warning that escalating conflicts could push the world into deeper uncertainty.

Speaking at the World Governments Summit, Sheikh Ahmad Abdullah Al Ahmad Al Sabah said the international system is already under strain, with rising geopolitical tensions testing long-standing frameworks that have governed global order for decades.

"We cannot live in a world that is not controlled properly," he said, stressing that stability requires adherence to established rules and mechanisms that have evolved over many years. The prime minister pointed to ongoing negotiations involving Iran, noting that discussions initially held in Turkey have now shifted to Oman. He expressed hope that diplomacy would prevail.

Peaceful solution

"Hopefully a peaceful solution will be reached," he said. "Otherwise, if the war started, then we'll be going in the tunnel, and God knows what happens there."

The remarks reflect growing regional concern over the potential fallout from any military escalation, particularly in a region already grappling with multiple flashpoints.

■ President His Highness Sheikh Mohamed Bin Zayed Al Nahyan meets Sheikh Ahmad Abdullah Al Ahmad Al Sabah, Prime Minister of Kuwait, during the World Governments Summit. The meeting addressed the close and fraternal ties between the UAE and Kuwait and their shared commitment to further strengthening cooperation, particularly in the economic, trade, and investment fields, in ways that serve the mutual interests of both nations and their peoples.

against creating temporary institutions or short-term fixes in response to crises, arguing that frequent shifts weaken global coordination and trust.

"We don't have to establish new institutions for a shorter time, then change later on, because it's been followed for years and years for the world order," he said.

Meanwhile, US President Donald Trump has said that the United States is negotiating with Iran and indicated the talks involve more than one meeting.

Asked at a White House event on Tuesday whether negotiations with Iran were happening this week, Trump replied, "Yeah."

Keen to negotiate

Pressed on where the meetings would be held and what the US needed to hear from Iran, he said: "They're all over, but they are negotiating." He added: "They'd like to do something, and we'll see if something is going to be done."

Trump also referenced earlier US action as he described the stakes for Tehran. "They had a chance to do something a while ago, and it didn't work out, and we did Midnight Hammer," he said. "I don't think they want that happening again, but they would like to negotiate."

He said the discussions are active. "We are negotiating with them right now," Trump said. When asked again for the location, he responded: "I can't tell you that." He added: "There really is more than one meeting."

Musk's Neuralink lets paralysed man operate devices with mind

Arbaugh hopes the brain chip could one day help him walk again

"Now I can control a computer with my thoughts," says Noland Arbaugh, the first human on Earth to have the Neuralink chip. It might sound like telekinesis but this once science-fiction concept is now becoming reality and it could soon be available to more people.

Arbaugh, 30, shared his experience at a panel during the World Governments Summit in Dubai, explaining the science behind the device. "I have the chip implanted onto my skull. There are 64 threads and 16 electrodes on each thread, implanted in my motor cortex. It is specifically correlated to my right hand," he said.

In January 2024, eight years after a 2016 accident left him paralysed below the shoulders, Arbaugh became the first person to receive the implant from US neuro-technology firm Neuralink.

founded by Elon Musk. Arbaugh explained that he could play video games, use social media, and perform nearly any task on a computer simply by thinking about it.

While Arbaugh can currently control devices with his mind, he said full physical restoration remains a possibility for the future. "I believe one day people could walk after a spinal cord injury in a hospital setting," he said.
