

The one secret I will never share with my husband? I slept with his brother first

SECRETS & LIVES

STARTS
PAGE 29

Prime Minister accused of red tape bonanza after creating 25 'unaccountable' advisory bodies in just six months...

A NEW QUANGO EVERY WEEK SINCE LABOUR VICTORY

EXCLUSIVE

By Jason Groves
Political Editor

KEIR Starmer was last night accused of smothering Britain in red tape after it emerged Labour has set up a new quango every week since taking power.

The Prime Minister pledged 'urgent' action to transform the country after his landslide election victory in July.

But analysis of the Government's record reveals it has created a staggering 25 new quangos and so-called taskforces and advisory councils in its first six months in office – equal to an average of one a week.

This will add to fears that Labour is more interested in reforming the structures of government than in driving real change in society.

And it follows revelations last month that the Government ordered 67 reviews and consultations in its first five months, leading to accusations Sir Keir is facing 'paralysis by analysis'.

Former Tory chairman Richard Holden warned the push to create more quangos

Turn to Page 6

Big night in: James Corden and Ruth Jones watch their festive finale

Tidy! The day Gavin & Stacey trumped the King...

SEE PAGE 3