'SMASHING THE GANGS' LATEST

Having scrapped Rwanda, Starmer launched his own 'deterrent' yesterday - a half-baked one in, one out deal with France. Yet it won't stop the boats and, even as it was unveiled, HUNDREDS more migrants landed here

V for victory: Migrants crammed on to a dinghy leave the French coastline behind on their way to English shores yesterday morning

WHAT A JOKE

KEIR Starmer's big plan to solve the Channel crisis was already threatening to unravel last night.

The Prime Minister and French president Emmanuel Macron

By David Barrett and David Churchill

announced a 'one in, one out' migrant swap deal which was far less ambitious than expected.

Sir Keir claimed the 'ground-breaking' pilot scheme would 'prove the concept that if you come over by small boats, then you will be returned to France'.

He said it was 'acutely a crisis for our two nations', but admitted the scheme may not be a 'silver bullet'.

And as the Anglo-French summit was being held, hundreds more migrants were crossing the Channel from northern France.

The deal was already looking in peril last night as it emerged:
