Tel Aviv blasts BBC for failing to cut hour-long live broadcast of vile outburst as police face demands...

NOW ARREST PUNK BAND WHO LED 'DEATH TO ISRAELIS' CHANTS AT GLASTONBURY

EXCLUSIVE

THE BBC and Glastonbury provoked outrage last night when a pro-Palestine punk act called for the death of Israeli soldiers during a live broadcast from the festival.

In appalling scenes condemned by the British and Israeli governments, the lead singer of the duo Bob Vylan led a crowd of thousands in a vile chant of 'death, death to the IDF' – the Israel Defence Forces.

The singer, who keeps his identity secret, also led a chant of 'free, free Palestine', and declared 'from the river to the sea Palestine... will be free' – regarded by many in the Jewish community as a call for Israel's elimination. The entire episode
