

The Boston Globe

Serving our community since 1872

TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 2025

Harvard alumni join AGs in fight vs. president

12,000 ex-students line up with Campbell group, schools in filing briefs

By Nick Stoico
GLOBE STAFF

More than 12,000 Harvard alumni, 21 state attorneys general, and two dozen universities, including five Ivy League schools, filed amicus briefs backing Harvard in its marathon court battle with the Trump administration Monday.

The broad wave of support for Harvard comes as the university seeks a summary judgment against the government, alleging the Trump administration unlawfully froze nearly $3 billion in federal funding to the school after it refused to cede control of academic and hiring decisions to the government.

Massachusetts Attorney General Andrea Joy Campbell led a group of 21 attorneys general in filing an amicus brief in the case Monday, writing the government's "wholesale attack" on Harvard "will have devastating spillover effects on the Massachusetts economy."

"The Trump Administration's attack on Harvard is an attack on the Commonwealth itself," Campbell said in a statement. "The President cannot strong-arm universities into abandoning their core values or relinquishing their independence."

The Trump administration has accused Harvard of violating civil rights law by allegedly failing to protect Jewish students from discrimination and harassment. Its pressure campaign against Harvard is part of the administration's wider crackdown on elite universities, which it ac-

HARVARD, Page A6

RFK Jr. fires vaccine panel advising CDC

Members predict upheavals in immunization policy

By Helen Branswell, Chelsea Cirruzzo, and Daniel Payne
STAT

Health Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr. has taken the extraordinary step of firing the expert panel that advises the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on immunizations, saying the action is needed to restore faith in vaccines.

"A clean sweep is needed to re-establish public confidence in vaccine science," Kennedy said in an op-ed published Monday afternoon in the Wall Street Journal.

Proponents of vaccines have feared Kennedy, who is openly skeptical of vaccines and has long been critical of the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, might take such a step. The panel studies vaccines in the regulatory pipeline and ones that have recently been licensed by the Food and Drug Administration, advising the CDC on to whom they should be offered once they have been approved.

Appointing replacement members to the advisory panel would give Kennedy broad latitude to reshape the government's childhood immunization schedule and other vaccines advice. New members haven't yet been named, but it would ap-

VACCINES, Page A6

Hearing ends, ordeal begins for immigrant

Her detention one of many as ICE targets courthouse

By Giulia McDonnell Nieto del Rio
GLOBE STAFF

The woman recoiled and burrowed into her husband's chest. She began to sob quietly, her body trembling, knees buckling. Her arms hung limp by her side as her husband held her upright.

This is how one ICE arrest unfolded in Boston's immigration court last week, as immigration agents have ramped up enforcement actions across Massachusetts.

ICE agents in plainclothes with handcuffs peeking out of their back pockets had waited outside the courtroom on the third floor of the John F. Kennedy Federal Building while the woman, Kary Diaz Martinez, finished her immigration court hearing. The judge set a court date for next year.

BRETT PHELPS FOR THE BOSTON GLOBE

At Boston's City Hall Plaza, Kerrie Mason and union members protested against ICE raids in Los Angeles. B1.

As Diaz Martinez left the courtroom, the five officers approached. Most of the other petitioners — men, women, families with children — had walked in and out of their hearings without issue that day. She was not so lucky. The agents told her she was being arrested.

She pleaded not to be separated from her husband, Wiliz de Leon, whom she had just married the previous Saturday. And she had two children, 10 and 7 years old, who were back in the Dominican Republic.

A lawyer standing nearby interjected.

"You don't have to take her into custody," Sarah Sherman-Stokes, a clinical associate professor of law and associate director of the Immigrants' Rights and Human Trafficking Clinic at Boston University School of Law, told the ICE officials. Sherman-Stokes was there to observe immigration proceedings last Tuesday and had been with Diaz Martinez and de Leon in the courtroom.

"We're doing our job," one of the agents said.

Diaz Martinez, 29, had been in the United States for a little over a year, after crossing the

COURTHOUSE, Page A7

'Trump and [Pete] Hegseth jumped from 0 to 60.'

ROB BONTA, attorney general of California

SPENCER PLATT/GETTY IMAGES

Protesters confronted National Guard soldiers and police outside of a federal building as demonstrations continued Monday after three days of unrest in Los Angeles.

Trump mobilizes Marines

Calls protesters 'insurrectionists'; Calif. officials say move is a provocation

By Laurel Rosenhall, Charlie Savage, and Jesus Jiménez
NEW YORK TIMES

The Trump administration was mobilizing a battalion of 700 Marines to guard federal property from protesters in Los Angeles, defense officials said Monday, even as California prepared to sue the administration over its decision to send National Guard troops into the city, arguing that it had inflamed tensions.

It was unclear what grounds President Trump and the Defense Department were using to send the Marines, based in Twentynine Palms, Calif., to the streets of an American city. Federal law generally bars active-duty forces from domestic law enforcement unless the president invokes the Insurrection Act of 1807 — a step Trump has not taken so far.

One defense official said that Pentagon lawyers believe they had found some leeway to deploy the Marines under the same law that Trump used to mobilize 2,000 National Guard troops over the weekend. Part of that law allows the president to deploy National Guard soldiers if "there is a rebellion or danger of a rebellion against the authority of the Government of the United States."

Trump also on Monday authorized the deployment of an additional 2,000 National Guard members to respond to immigration protests, according to the Pentagon's chief spokesperson. The latest order brings the

LOS ANGELES, Page A7

With RMV, off-ramps from a road to ruin are scarce

BRETT PHELPS FOR THE BOSTON GLOBE

Angel rode the T home from work in Boston. He lost his driver's license due to unpaid tolls that he said he did not know existed.

Little recourse for drivers who lose license over debts

By Laura Crimaldi
GLOBE STAFF

Thousands of Massachusetts drivers each year face the possibility of losing their legal authority to drive, and sometimes the only fix carries an insurmountable cost.

The state Registry of Motor Vehicles placed driver's licenses in non-renewal status nearly 3 million times during a five-year period because of unpaid tolls and other debts unrelated to road safety, according to agency data reviewed by the Globe.

The designation means that once those driver's licenses expire, they cannot be renewed, unless the entire debt, sometimes thousands of dollars, is paid in full.

The number of drivers who lost their authority to drive under these circumstances is unclear. The

LICENSES, Page A10

The day has finally arrived for Sox fans: Uber prospect Roman Anthony was called up from the minor leagues. C1.

Sly Stone has died. The magnetic multi-instrumentalist introduced a genre-fusing brand of psychedelic funk, spinning off songs that could be dance anthems, political dispatches, or both. C10.

Russia continued its record-breaking aerial assaults — almost 500 drones and missiles fired overnight — at Ukraine as peace talks stall. A3.

Spit personality

Tuesday: More rain. High 63-68, low 60-65.

Wednesday: Sun is back, warm. High 80-85, low 66-71

Sunrise: 5:07. Sunset: 8:20.

Weather and comics, D5-6.

Obituaries, C9-10.

VOL. 307, NO. 161

*

Suggested retail price $4.00

23218

0 947725 4