

Chicago Tribune

$4.00 | WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24, 2026 | CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM

US, Iran dispute nuclear inspections

Senate OKs proposal to limit Trump's war powers in conflict

By Munir Ahmed, David Rising and Jon Gambrell
ASSOCIATED PRESS

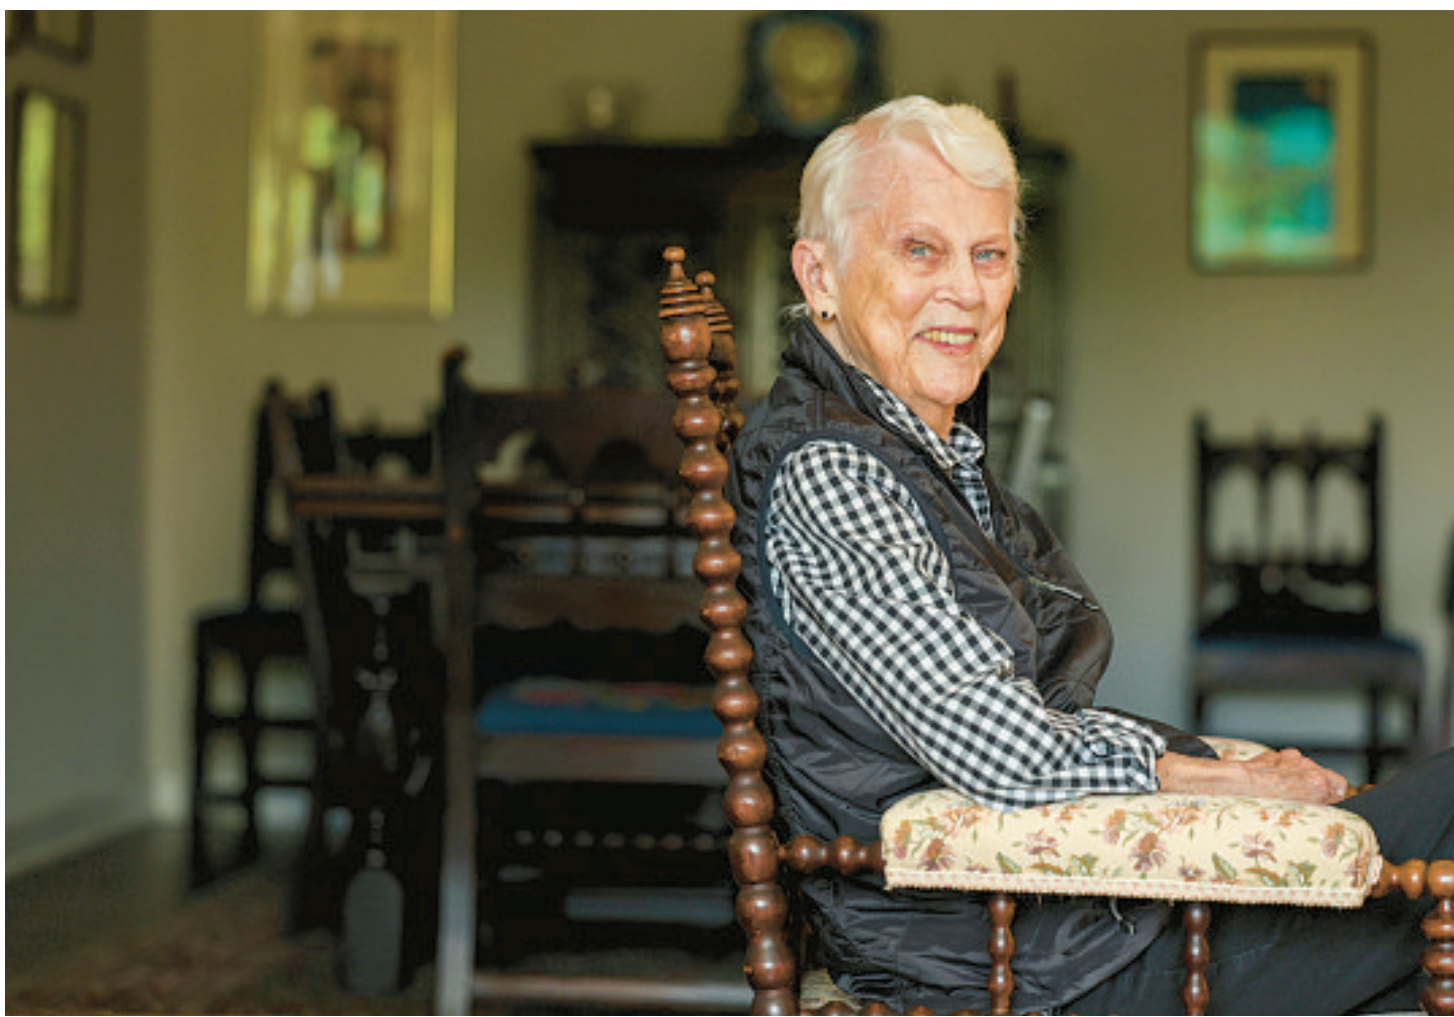

ISLAMABAD — The U.S. and Iran were in dispute Tuesday over whether Tehran had agreed to allow U.N. inspections of its nuclear sites. As officials negotiated over how to permanently end the war in Iran, a separate plan emerged to break the shipping bottleneck through the Strait of Hormuz.

The disagreement over nuclear inspections came as Iran's president met with Pakistani mediators and technical teams from the U.S. and Iran continued talks in Switzerland. Also Tuesday in Washington, D.C., the Senate for the first time approved a war powers resolution seeking to block U.S. military action against Iran, as lawmakers warily watch President Donald Trump's efforts to resolve a conflict that the administration launched on its own and now needs Congress to fund. It was the 10th time the Senate has tried to stop the war, and the outcome, on a vote of 50-48, was a stunning turnaround from past efforts. While the resolution is largely symbolic, and does not fully carry the force of law, it reflects the growing concerns from a number of Republican lawmakers in the House and Senate over both the war and the tentative deal Trump struck with Iran to end it. The House approved the resolution earlier this month. "Time after time, the vast majority of Senate Republicans sided with Trump and his war instead of the American people," said Senate Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer. Schumer said Americans have paid the price for "Trump's historic blunder in Iran. It'll go down in the history books as one of the worst foreign policy forays America has ever made." In the past, as many as four GOP senators have voted for the war powers resolutions, and they did so Tuesday — Republicans Lisa Murkowski of Alaska, Susan Collins of Maine, Rand Paul of Kentucky and Bill Cassidy of Louisiana. One Democrat, Sen. John Fetterman of Pennsylvania, voted against. On this vote, the absence of two Republicans, including Sen. Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, who was admitted to the hospital recently for an undisclosed matter, left the GOP without a full majority to halt the effort.

See IRAN on Page A6

Sheila Perry, 87, in her grandmother's antique chair in her home on June 18 in Wheaton. In March, Perry received a kidney transplant, making her the oldest person in Illinois to receive one. STACEY WESCOTT/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Methadone clinic owner charged in fraud scheme

Feds say millions stolen to fund lavish lifestyle and yacht 'Butt Nekkid'

By Jason Meisner
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The owner of an Oak Lawn methadone clinic has been charged in a massive fraud scheme that allegedly swindled tens of millions of dollars from government programs that were used to fund an extravagant lifestyle, including brokerage accounts, luxury cars, jewelry and a yacht named "Butt Nekkid." Daniel J. Robinson, 51, of Palos Park, was charged with two counts of healthcare fraud in a criminal complaint made public in U.S. District Court on Tuesday, records show.

Robinson was arrested at an airport in south Florida Sunday night while "attempting to leave the country," according to the U.S. Justice Department. Court records show he waived a detention hearing in federal court in Miami on Monday and was ordered transported by U.S. marshals to Chicago to face the charges.

Robinson's attorney, Michael Leonard, said Tuesday he looked forward to "vigorously defending" the case at trial.

"It appears to us that he and his company have been unfairly targeted without a legitimate basis," Leonard said in a statement to the Tribune. "The company was continuously subject to audits, both from private insurance carriers and the government."

The charges were part of a nationwide effort called the 2026 National Health Care Fraud Take-down, which the Justice Department says resulted in charges against 455 defendants, including 90 doctors and other licensed medical professionals, involving more than $6.5 billion in false claims and "significant patient harm."

Another Chicago-area case announced by U.S. Attorney Andrew Boutros on Tuesday alleged a Naperville man ran a scheme to defraud Medicare of nearly $250

See FRAUD on Page A6

'I was just grateful'

At 87, Wheaton woman becomes oldest known female in Illinois to get kidney transplant

By Allison Kiehl | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

When Sheila Perry learned that she was a record-setter at 87 years old, she was surrounded by family, and all the group could do was laugh. Indeed, they had much to smile about.

The Wheaton local is the oldest known female in Illinois — and among the oldest in the United States — to have a successful kidney transplant.

"I knew it was probably unusual, but I had no idea that I was the oldest. My family was a lot more impressed than I was," Perry said. "I was just grateful. I wasn't spending any time thinking about the rest of it."

Instead, the retired nonprofit executive is intent on returning to the vibrant life she has always led, filled with family, travel, music and art. She lives alone by choice and walks several miles a day.

"For now, I can continue with my life," she said, "which was gradually going to get harder and harder to do."

As life expectancies continue to increase in the United States and globally, Perry's successful March 6 kidney transplant at Northwestern Medicine lends recent support for transplant surgeons to consider older candidates in good health. The oldest woman in the United States to get an organ transplant was 96 years old, setting the record in 2009.

Doctors say transplant surgery is still a relatively new and evolving medical field. While every transplant candidate has different health circumstances, a successful transplant encourages doctors to look beyond a patient's age.

"We are learning the limits of our field in real time," said Satish Nadig, a transplant surgeon at Northwestern Medicine. "When something like this happens, we think to ourselves, 'Wow, we have come so far and still have so far to go.'"

In 2024, there were more than 22,000 kidney transplants

See KIDNEY on Page A6

INSIDE

ARTURO HOLMES/GETTY

Bulls select Wilson with No. 4 pick

The top of the NBA draft played out according to predictions Tuesday, allowing the Bulls to select North Carolina's Caleb Wilson at No. 4. The 6-foot-10 forward averaged 19.8 points and 9.4 rebounds as a freshman for the Tar Heels. Sports

Bears looking to cobble together Ill. legislation

Pritzker: Team eyeing blend of 2 bills that may pass legislature

By Olivia Olander
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The Chicago Bears are looking to piece together legislation in Illinois that might pass the General Assembly in Springfield, Gov. JB Pritzker said Tuesday, as the team continues to weigh whether to stay or move across the border to Indiana.

Pritzker said his office has been a player in the ongoing Illinois negotiations with the NFL franchise, which has been considering elements of two bills that each passed one chamber of the Illinois General Assembly this spring.

"They've asked for advice, and so our staff, as well as legislators, have offered them that," Pritzker said, speaking to reporters Tuesday in Chicago. "They're looking at both of the bills that passed, the one in the House and the one in the Senate, hoping to put the provisions of each of those together in a form that they think will pass."

The governor's comments came after Pritzker and others have called on the Bears to come to a deal before lawmakers may be brought back to Springfield as part of a potential special session. Lawmakers in the state House and state Senate each passed a bill this spring to pave the way for the Bears to stay in Illinois, but they

See BEARS on Page A5

Gov. JB Pritzker speaks alongside House Speaker Emanuel "Chris" Welch after signing the state budget on June 16.

E. JASON WAMBSGANS/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SUBSCRIPTION

Visit myaccount.chicagotribune.com or call 312-546-7900 to sign up for a subscription. To place an ad, visit placeanad.chicagotribune.com.

WEATHER FORECAST

TODAY H: 78 L: 63
THU. H: 78 L: 60
FRI. H: 74 L: 62
Complete details on Page A18

INDEX

Almanac A11
Arts & Living B8
Comics B12-B13
Crossword B13
Editorials A8
Horoscope B12
Nation & World B4
Obituaries A11
Television B11

179th year No. 175
© Chicago Tribune